

Dear Parishioners

In letter sent last Monday to seminarians, Benedict XVI affirmed that the priesthood isn't something that belongs to the past but is vital for the future.

In his letter he recalled a conversation he had with an officer after being conscripted as a teenager into the German army in 1944. "The company commander asked each of us what we planned to do in the future. I answered that I wanted to become a Catholic priest. The lieutenant replied: 'Then you ought to look for something else. In the new Germany priests are no longer needed.' I knew that this 'new Germany' was already coming to an end, and that, after the enormous devastation which that madness had brought upon the country, priests would be needed more than ever. Today the situation is completely changed. In different ways, though, many people nowadays also think that the Catholic priesthood is not a 'job' for the future, but one that belongs more to the past. You, dear friends, have decided to enter the seminary and to prepare for priestly ministry in the Catholic Church in spite of such opinions and objections. You have done a good thing. Because people will always have need of God, even in an age marked by technical mastery of the world and globalization: they will always need the God who has revealed himself in Jesus Christ, the God who gathers us together in the universal Church in order to learn with him and through him life's true meaning and in order to uphold and apply the standards of true humanity. Where people no longer perceive God, life grows empty; nothing is ever enough. People then seek escape in euphoria and violence - these are the very things that increasingly threaten young people. God is alive. He has created every one of us and he knows us all. He is so great that he has time for the little things in our lives: 'Every hair of your head is numbered'. God is alive, and he needs people to serve him and bring him to others. It does make sense to become a priest: the world needs priests, pastors, today, tomorrow and always, until the end of time."

The RCIA group met on Sunday and decided that we will meet regularly on Tuesday evenings, beginning a fortnight on Tuesday, 9th November, at 7.30 in the Presbytery. This will interest those who wish to learn more about the faith, have missed making their First Communion, wish to join the Church or are simply curious about what makes a Catholic tick! If you have a friend who is interested but shy of walking into the Presbytery - then bring them along yourself

CAFOD DID YOU KNOW.....that CAFOD partners use football to bring about positive change? The Millennium Stars is a local football team founded by CAFOD partner, DON BOSCO HOMES (DBH), after the civil war in LIBERIA. Most of the team are former child soldiers who, during the war, were separated from their parents. For DBH and CAFOD, playing in a football team nurtures positive role models and develops leadership skills, offering hope for a positive future.

QUILT Some years ago a parish member, now deceased, made an exhibition quilt. It took 9 months to make and it was made for love with the hope that it would bring great happiness to its owners. It is made from American cotton, fully washable and uses machine Trapunto, machine quilting and some hand embroidery - apparently quite unique. The design is a traditional single Irish chain with Celtic inspired designs. We are organising "a draw" at £5 "a go". There will only be 50 tickets so you have a guaranteed 1 in 50 chance of winning and owning this beautiful quilt. It will be on display near the Lady Altar this weekend 23/24 October and at later dates. The draw will take place at the end of the Christmas Tree Festival on 12th December. Please take time to have a look at this beautiful quilt.
